A Good Odd Fellow.

Mr. Cutler, of 31 Lyons St., New Haven, Conn.—How He takes Life Easy now and how he obtained the Means to Regain his Health.

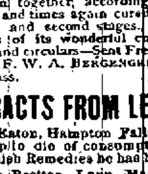

Mr. Cutler, of 31 Lyons St., is a faithful Odd Fellow, and for forty years a member of Quinipiac Lodge No. 1 (the oldest organization of its kind in the State of Conn.). He is a man much respected in New Haven. Your reporter found him at his pleasant home on Lyons street one afternoon, taking life easy. "You see," he says, "I'm trying to make myself feel a little indisposed. I presume it's the lingering results of a Lodge dinner which I attended a while ago down at the beach. I have been, as many of my friends in New Haven know, a sufferer for years from indigestion and biliousness. When I have indulged in too hearty food I've had to suffer at times extremely. As a result I've had to place myself under my physician's care often, and I have taken a great many remedies, but I find after a thorough trial that Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is the most excellent medicine I have ever had knowledge of for any of the disorders above mentioned. It leaves no exhaustive effects, but rather strengthens and regulates the digestive organs in a charming manner. We keep it as a household medicine, and I have recommended it to my friends, for it is an excellent preparation."

Mr. Cutler is a man whose word can be depended upon. His testimony is but a re-echo of the words of thousands in New England who have received relief from the sole use of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood, expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE."

Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."

River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world. JAMES MAYNARD."

520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

Said real estate is the same described in a deed recorded in the Registry of Deeds of said County, Vol. 469, page 317. ANNIE E. DONOHUE.

NO USE FOR THEM.

Concerning Certain Relics of the Past—Dogs that have had their Day.

George Stephenson's "Rocket," and the magnificent locomotives of to-day, are built upon the same general principle, yet the machine with which the great engineer astonished his age, is interesting now only as an illustration of the beginning of the invention. There were plasters with holes in them long before BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER surprised both the public and the physicians; and the triumph of the Capcine is founded upon the partial successes, or the utter failures of its predecessors. Everything of value in the old porous plaster is retained in the Capcine; but at this point all comparison ends, and contrast begins. For example:

The old plasters were slow in their action, the Capcine is quick and sure.

The old plasters lacked the power to do more than to impart slight, temporary relief in cases easy of treatment; the Capcine penetrates the system and permanently cures the troubles for which it is recommended.

The old plasters depended for any good results they might attain, upon an accident of their makers and the naked faith of their wearers; the Benson's reaches its ends by means of the scientific combination of the rare medicinal ingredients which it contains.

In brief, the old plasters, like Stephenson's discarded engine, are switched off the track, while the Benson's goes on its way winning golden opinions from all sorts of people.

Yet in this very fact lies the leading danger to the people who buy and use this reliable and scientific remedy. "Hypocrisy is the tribute vice pays to virtue." Imitation is the concession failure makes to success. Benson's Plasters are parodied in name and style.

Beware of swindles. The genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the centre. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York.

A regatta at Evesham, England, was followed by sixty-eight cases of typhoid fever among persons who attended it. A Paris correspondent of a Chicago paper tells how the most famous of male dressmakers gets his patterns. The writer says: "He goes to the end of every season to the different dressmakers of Paris, choosing those that are least known, so that it will not be so soon found out, and buys all their old stock, which he sells at fancy prices, to the delighted buyers, as his own creations."

King Humbert, of Italy, drives himself about like any other quiet gentleman in Rome. When his carriage gets blocked as it frequently does in the narrower streets, he takes it more patiently than the foreigners do, who admire the way in which he sits and nods and laughs to acquaintances in the crowd. Both the King and Queen of Italy are extremely simple in their appearance in public.

Mrs. L. P. Morton, wife of the American Minister to France, is rated by the Americans the most popular "Embassador's wife" since the days of Mrs. Dix. Mrs. Morton, who is her husband's second wife, was a Miss Annie Street, of New York, whose father, now dead, was a merchant. She is young, beautiful, and talented, speaking French as a Parisian, and painting exquisitely, among other accomplishments. Mrs. Street, her mother, lives with her in Paris, and the entertainments at the Legation are never characterized by economy.

Mr. George Dawson was delirious during his illness, and the Albany Journal says: "His delirium unconsciously displayed the characteristics of the man, and his unselfish and benevolent disposition. At times, imagining himself in the old chair in the Journal editorial room, he would discuss questions of political economy with imaginary callers. On other occasions he would call for the exchanges, and refer to this or that topic as though giving advice or instructions to the members of the editorial staff. Then again the scene would shift and the sufferer, imagining himself among his little flock at the North Albany Mission, would impart to them wise instruction as to the manner in which they should walk in this life to secure the reward of salvation in eternity. Still again the phase of thought changing, he was helping with his means the poor and worthy petitioners for his benefactions."

The widow of Thorne, the actor, is almost broken-hearted. She was perfectly devoted to her husband, and spent every evening with him at the theatre, performing the office of dresser as a privilege rather than a duty.

A letter, which was mailed in Provincetown last June, addressed to Highland Light, about four miles away, has just reached its destination, having been as far as Truro, Nova Scotia, in one direction, and as Tucson, Arizona, in another.

Colorado last year produced $25,933,188 of silver bullion, which was about three millions more than in 1881. California produced $16,332,493, chiefly in gold, or nearly two millions less than in the previous year. The San Francisco Bulletin thinks it probable that the range of gold production in California will be from sixteen to twenty millions annually for the next ten years. The Bulletin remarks: "While Colorado leads now in the production of precious metals, it looks as if the maximum of production had been reached in that State. The great gold and silver producing countries of the future will probably be Arizona, Sonora and Chihuahua—with the possibility of including Alaska."

Miss Kate Field intends to visit Colorado in May and spend some weeks in Denver and its vicinity. To a friend in that city she writes: "I'm ashamed to know so little of my country, when I know so much of Europe. Born on the Mississippi, near St. Louis, I've never been west of the big river, and it's time I saw beyond. If it will pay, and I can find an honest, clever agent, I'd like to give my monologue in Denver. I began it with great success here and then went into an eclipse, all on account of co-operation. The monologue needs a pianist only, besides myself, and I presume such an animal can be found on the spot; one who doesn't get drunk preferred. I shall use my eyes and ears, and probably write a book—for which a publisher has already made me a bid—and get materials for a play, if possible."

The following scene took place at that whirlpool of mud, slush and jostling humanity the corner of Winter and Washington streets, in Boston. Two pretty girls were walking down Winter street; they were handsomely dressed and were chatting and laughing with the delightful abandon peculiar to the roseate period of youth, and they seemed the very last persons who would be interested in suffering humanity. A dirty and ragged beggar woman, evidently blind, was crossing Washington from Summer street, and was in great danger of being run over by an approaching team, when one of these same pretty girls darted to the crossing, took the beggar woman by the arm, and hurried her over to the sidewalk where she left her in safety, and then walked up Washington street with her former companion as if nothing had happened. Three rich and handsome bachelors of thirty-five, to whom an eye witness related this true story, are now eagerly seeking to obtain that young lady's address.

OVER 4,000 FATHOMS.

THE DEEPEST SOUNDINGS EVER MADE IN THE ATLANTIC.

The coast and geodetic survey steamer Blake swung alongside the long dock at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, Wednesday, after an absence of 67 days. The Blake left there early in December, and since then has been engaged in running a line of deep sea soundings and serial temperatures from Bermuda to the Bahamas, and a number of lines normal to the latter islands. She comes back with the distinction of having made the deepest sounding ever before made in the Atlantic Ocean. On the 19th of January, in N. lat. 19° 41', W. lon. 66° 24', about 105 miles northwest from St. Thomas, the lead did not touch bottom until 4,561 fathoms of line had been paid out. The greatest depth heretofore found in the Atlantic has been 3,862 fathoms. The location of this sounding was close to that of the present one, and was made by the Challenger, which, sent out by the Royal Society of England, made soundings in the Atlantic between the years 1872 and 1876.

Master Henry Morrell, third in command of the Blake, stood upon the deck of the vessel, with a straw hat upon his head. "A week ago," said he, "this hat was serviceable. We were then under sunny skies and breathing balmy air. The principal object of the cruise," he continued, when the comfort of the cabin had been reached, "was to complete the soundings necessary for a chart of the bottom of the ocean. That part lying to the northward of the Bahamas, has not up to this time been satisfactorily sounded. We left here on the 9th of December for Bermuda, where our first line of soundings began. On the 18th we left for Nassau. There are two channels from Nassau—one called the Northeast Providence channel, opening into the Atlantic to the northward and eastward, and another called the Northwest channel, which goes to the southward of the Great Bahama Islands. We made soundings in the Northeast Providence channel, and for twenty or twenty-five miles from the coast got 2,300 fathoms. There is an important fact shown by the soundings there. All the way along the coast to the northeast of the Bahamas the soundings increase very abruptly and very rapidly. There is no gradual deepening, as in other places. Starting at ten fathoms, for instance, the next sounding made near by might be one hundred, then two hundred, five hundred, and, perhaps, one thousand next, up to 2,300 or 2,500. Between the southern end of Great Abaco Island and Cape Samana, at the northwestern point of St. Domingo Island, we ran seven lines of soundings.

"The deepest sounding made during the trip—and the deepest ever made in the Atlantic ocean—was 75 miles north of San Juan, Porto Rico. It was about 80 miles southwest of the place where the Challenger made her deepest sounding. It was inside a basin, that is, many hundred fathoms down it was inclosed by a ridge. The temperature of the water at this great depth was 36°. It is a curious fact in connection with such basins as this that the water of the bottom of them is of exactly the same temperature as that which runs over the top of the ridge several hundred fathoms above. The specimens of the bottom which we secured at this sounding showed a soft, brown ooze, with evidence of fauna."

The apparatus by which, in deep sea sounding, the temperature of the water at the bottom and at varying depths is learned, is most ingenious and complete. The chief reliance is placed upon the Cassell-Miller deep sea thermometer. The glass tube which contains the mercury is U shaped, the curve being at the bottom and the tube running up on either side. At the top of one of its extremities is a glass bulb containing a preparation of creosote and alcohol. The bulb is inclosed in an outer one of very thick glass. This tube itself is also of very great thickness, this being rendered necessary on account of the tremendous pressure of water which it is compelled to withstand. At the depth of 1,000 fathoms the pressure of the water is one ton per square inch. At the top of the other extremity of the tube is another bulb, inclosed in wood. This contains alcohol and compressed air. One side of the tube registers degrees of heat, the other degrees of cold. Inside each section of the tube, above the continuous column of mercury, is a steel index, which is adjusted to its position by means of a magnet held outside. As the thermometer is lowered into the water and reaches a lower temperature, the mercury ascends the left hand side tube, lifting with it the steel index. After it reaches the bottom, the thermometer is permitted to remain for some minutes, that the correct temperature may be registered. During its return, in its passage through the water of a higher temperature, the incorrect registering of the mercury is guarded against by the steel index, for, though the mercury may drop, the steel index remains at the point to which it has been raised. To make assurance doubly sure, two "checks" are brought into play. One is mercurial (the Negretti-Zambra), the other (Siemens' apparatus) being electrical.

Steamer State of Maine reports that eighteen miles ENE from Boon Island she passed the wreck of a schooner of about 150 tons, bottom up, spars and rigging alongside.

The News says that Lorenzo Plummer, after teaming from Bridgton to Brownfield for eleven years, has yielded to the logic of events and taken off his teams. He is now busy hauling freight to and from the Bridgton depot for our local business men, which is less irksome. He was the first teamster on the road to Brownfield, after the opening of the P. & O. road, and was the last to leave.

February 12th, the residence of George W. Banks, also the room of Frank C. Cunningham, Lewiston, were entered by sneak thieves, and a ladies' hunter case gold watch and Leontine chain, a gentleman's solitaire diamond pin with platinum tips, valued at $250, and a ladies' pearl ring valued at $35 were stolen. L. S. Griffin and Fred Dyer were the alleged burglars. They came to Portland, sold the watch, chain and ring, and went to Boston, where they spent the money. Then they went to Lawrence and there broke into a wood and coal office, stealing $12. City Marshal O'Sullivan of that city arrested them and brought them to Portland, Thursday, where he surrendered them to Marshal Metcalf, of Lewiston.

Her husband was for many years editor of the Portland Advertiser, was connected with the New York papers, and afterwards editor of the New Orleans Picayune. Mrs. Otis' remains will be taken to Newburyport for interment.

Franklin.

The well-known and beloved Rev. John Allen, lost his gold watch in Farmington, a short time ago. Last Sunday evening, while on her way to prayer meeting, a Methodist sister saw something glistening in the moonlight, down in the road. She picked up a gold watch and chain, and inside the case was the inscription: "Presented to Campmeeting John by his Boston brethren, on the occasion of his golden wedding." The crystal was shattered, and a horse had broken the chain. The watch and chain were worth $150. So, Father Allen was soon in possession of his watch again.

NEW BOOK RECEIVED.

DUST, by Julian Hawthorne. Author of Bressant, and Sebastian Strome, Garth, etc. It is noteworthy that this novel of English society in the early part of the present century, appears at so nearly the same time with Nathaniel Hawthorne's powerful posthumous novel, Doctor Grimshawe, dealing with both England and America at about the same period. This affords opportunity for interesting comparison, or rather contrast, between the weird, inverted, poetic style of the father and the direct, vigorous, picturesque style of the son. Julian Hawthorne has a marked individuality of his own; and the strong, romantic interest and graphic portraiture of Dust, will add to his growing fame, as thus far the ablest work from a pen gifted with high qualities, both by heredity and training. With Illustrations, and Portrait of the Author.

A CENTURY BEHIND.

[From the Hartford Post (Rep).]

Professor Sumner continues to disgorge great quantities of circular reasoning, beginning from his own premises and logically arguing back to them, in the shape of letters to the press. He continues to impress, so far as he is able, upon the wonderful purchasing power his money would have if free trade existed; but he neglects to tell him that he would have less money to use as a purchasing power. He continues to argue in effect, that this country would be more prosperous if we merely took the products of our soil and bartered them for the manufactures of other nations, but omits the fact that we are ready to barter our manufactures as well as our agricultural products. He still argues, in accordance with his already famous statement that "it is thread that we want; not a thread mill." If the Professor had been present at the settlement of the country and materialized his theories into actual practice and so ingrained them into the framework of our political economy, that time should have strengthened rather than effaced them, what a simple-minded, pastoral people we should have been by this time, selling corn and buying clothing across the water, selling wheat and buying all manufactured articles "where we could get them cheapest," in Europe. The noisy whirl of spindles, the distressing echoes of the forge hammer, the greasy mechanic with his teeming brain, making the best of himself—all these would not now be with us, but we should by the sweat of our brows in summer have earned the winter's loafing season in the corner grocery, and there would have been no need for immigrants to come to us and grow up with the country. They would have all been kept busy in "glorious free trade England" making articles for our use. It is a pity the Professor was not born a century or two earlier.

Mr. Bass, of the Commercial, who has besieged the State House and haunted the waking and sleeping hours of legislators in opposition to the railroad extension bill, has at last been heavily sat down upon and returning home he mournfully and indignantly complains in his Saturday paper that:

"All of the members of the Judiciary Committee, excepting Messrs. Powers and Talbot, voted to report the bill authorizing the city of Bangor to waive its first mortgage on the B. & P. R. R., for the purpose of extending the road from Blanchard to the Lake."

He endeavors to comfort himself with intimations that the other eight members of the committee are not of much consequence, but we notice that the list includes Senators A. G. Lebroke, of Piscataquis, Charles McLaughlin, of Cumberland, Thomas H. Wentworth, of Penobscot, and Representatives Oliver G. Hall, of Rockland, Clarence Hale, of Portland, W. H. White, of Lewiston, Herbert M. Heath, of Augusta, and George A. Wilson, of Paris. The present indications are that Mr. Bass had better keep off the track or look out for the cow-catcher.

In the House the other day Mr. Eaton, of Camden, said if the capital punishment bill passed he should move an amendment that convicts should be chloroformed before being executed under the law. Whereupon a matter-of-fact ex-Sheriff of Kennebec County, who was present, remarked sotto voce that he would suggest an additional amendment providing that all murderers be required to chloroform their victim before killing them.

The Congressional Apportionment bill finally passed the Senate on Friday and was signed by President Cutler. The appending of the Governor's signature will make it the law of the land.

Governor Butler, in straining after effect has published a ridiculously long proclamation for a Fast Day, which he puts in the form of a devout and all comprehensive prayer, but closes with a sarcastic request that the ministers will on that day confine themselves to religion and not preach politics. The most natural reflection will be that the ministers are as a rule better qualified to discuss politics than the "boss politician" of Massachusetts is to deliver prayers.

Congressman-elect Pusey, of Iowa, according to the Commercial Gazette, of Pittsburg, was a school-mate of the Hon. James G. Blaine, at Washington College, Penn. They belonged to the same literary society, and young Blaine became ambitious to be elected President of it. Canvassing for votes, he asked Pusey if he would support him. "Why," was the reply, "you don't know anything about parliamentary rules. You can't preside." "No, that's so," responded Blaine; "but I can commit Cushing's Manual to memory." He did so in a few days, and was elected President of the society.

HOW PATTI FAILED TO GO TO THE WHITE HOUSE. A special from Washington, Feb. 23, says: The President invited a select party of friends to meet Patti this evening, but Patti was not there. She will send to-morrow to the President a note in French, of which the following is a translation:

"Madame Patti received the gracious invitation of His Excellency the President to attend the reception at the house yesterday, but as she is obliged to sing in 'Traviata' this afternoon, she from prudential reasons was unable to accept."

The President's invitation to Madame Patti was not in French. Patti was born in Baltimore, but has, like Madam Gilflory, "lived so long abroad" that she has, doubtless, forgotten that French is not the court language of America. Society people are shocked at the audacious discourtesy, so the select circle which had assembled at the White House "to meet Patti" was disappointed. An invitation of the President is considered in Washington society a command which the highest diplomat respects, but the Queen of Song has set the rules of etiquette at defiance.

A VALUED COMPLIMENT.

[Editorial in Boston Post, copied in Bangor Commercial.]

Congressman Ladd's speech in favor of retaining the duty on Canadian lumber was a noteworthy one and evidently had the desired effect. By the way, Congressman Ladd is shortly to become a private citizen. He has served his constituents honestly and ably during two terms, and it is a great pity that his mantle is now to fall upon the shoulders of one of the cheapest specimens of humanity in Maine.

THE SENATE TARIFF BILL.

SPECULATIONS AS TO ITS FATE—IMPORTANT MISTAKES.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal, under date of Feb. 23d, writes: The prospects that the Tariff bill will be sent to a conference have improved. This morning a paper was prepared for signature by Republican Representatives pledging themselves to vote for a concurrence and requesting the Committee on Rules to report an amendment to the rules under which the Senate bill may be taken from the Speaker's table and referred directly to a conference composed of five Representatives and five Senators. Late this afternoon this paper contained fifty signatures. If matters are allowed to remain in the present situation without any change of the rules no legislation is possible, and those who are determined that the only road to it shall be the way of a Conference Committee can preserve the status quo if they desire to do so, because they have a clear majority of the Committee on Rules. There seems now to be little probability of the success of a motion to suspend the rules to pass the bill.

The Republican members of the Committee on Rules held a conference this afternoon and agreed upon the form of the rule which will be reported to the House as soon as they shall become assured that a fair majority for non-concurrence can be obtained. This new rule is a combination of the Haskell rule offered yesterday and of one drawn by Robinson, of Massachusetts, and submitted to the Speaker. The amendment will provide that a majority of the House may suspend the rules, go to the Speaker's table, take the Tariff bill therefrom and send it direct to a Conference Committee, and that if motion to suspend the rules shall fail the bill shall retain its position on the Speaker's table, with the parliamentary conditions unchanged.

IMPORTANT OMISSIONS.

It has been discovered to-day that the engrossed Tariff bill sent by the Senate to the House is defective in some important particulars. By the omission of a punctuation mark the duty on iron and steel of all kinds is increased $5 per ton over what the Senate intended to make it. Saulsbury, a Democrat, is Chairman of the Senate Committee on Engrossed Bills. Senator Aldrich had his attention called to this by the Journal correspondent this afternoon, and he said that the Enrolling Clerk of the Senate would come over to the House in the morning and fix it. "No much, he won't," spoke up Chase, of Rhode Island, who was sitting by. "No Senate Clerk can touch that bill so long as it remains in our custody. We do not know how many more mistakes there are in it of the same kind, and we are not going to have the duties increased or decreased by a Clerk of the Senate."

Buyers of fence wire will not be pleased to know that the Senate has also by an eccentricity of punctuation increased the rate on fence wire one-quarter of a cent above what the Senate intended to place it at it.

THE DUTY ON LUMBER.

The Senate first put lumber on the free list, and then put it back on the dutiable list, fixing the rates on everything except sawn pine lumber from five to ten per cent higher than the rates in the House bill.

AN EXPENSIVE COMMA.

The mistake as to the comma recalls a similar mistake some ten years ago, when, by the misplacing of a comma in the bill relative to the duty on tin plates, the law was so changed that the Government was compelled to expend $1,000,000 in refunding duties. It was charged at that time that the comma was intentionally misplaced, but an investigation which was had upon it failed to disclose any such intention.

There is no such suspicion as regards the present bill, as those who have had charge of it are entirely above any possible suspicion. The House was in great haste to have the bill, and as it was very voluminous the error could easily occur.

THE LATE PROF. CHADBOURNE.

The late Prof. Paul A. Chadbourne, who died at New York, Friday, was born at North Berwick, Oct. 21, 1823. His early experiences were such as to develop in him that spirit of self-reliance and perseverance which made him a successful man in his later career. He worked on a farm in summer and in a carpenter's shop in winter to support himself until he was seventeen years old. Then he studied pharmacy and medicine, was engaged some time in the drug business in Great Falls, N. H., and finally, with a capital of $23, entered the Phillips Academy at Exeter to fit for college, and paid his current expenses by copying law documents and other papers. In 1848 he graduated at Williams College, taking the highest honors of his class. After this he taught school a year at Freehold, N. J., entering at the same time upon the study of theology.

A severe illness attacked him at about this period, and he came out of it with the loss of a portion of one lung. Subsequently he entered the Theological Institution of Connecticut, at Windsor, now the Hartford Theological Seminary, and then became principal of the high school in Great Falls, N. H., whence he was called to the position of tutor in Williams College. From the college he went to the East Windsor Hill Academy in Connecticut, of which he was principal, until in 1853 he returned to Williams College as professor of chemistry and natural history. In 1850 he was called to fill the same chair in Bowdoin College. He was also a professor in the Berkshire Medical College three years during this time, and was chemical lecturer in Mount Holyoke Seminary thirteen years. In addition to his labors in connection with these several most important positions, Dr. Chadbourne did a great amount of general lecturing and traveling, making an exploration in Newfoundland in 1855, leading a scientific expedition to Florida in 1857, and leading a similar expedition to Greenland in 1860. In 1859 he visited Europe and Ireland to make a personal study of volcanoes and geysers.

Dr. Chadbourne always took a deep and active interest in public affairs, and has been prominent in both State and National politics, acting steadily with the Republican party since it was formed. In 1865, and again in 1866, he represented North Berkshire in the Massachusetts Senate. In 1866 he was President of the Board of Trustees of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and then became the first President of the institution. In the first year of his services he was again attacked with a severe affection of the lungs, and was obliged to leave New England. While in the West he was again called, in the summer of 1866, to the Presidency of the Madison University, in which was included the Agricultural College of Wisconsin. He accepted the office, and in three years succeeded in placing the institution upon a firm basis. In 1872 he accepted the position of President of Williams College, and continued nine years therein and then resigned, feeling that his work in the institution had been accomplished.

He did not intend returning again to the educational field, but in January, 1882, he was unanimously elected President of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and accepted the position, and occupied it at the time of his death.

Dr. Chadbourne held no political offices in Massachusetts after his service in the Senate, except those of presidential elector-at-large in 1880 and that of Prison Commissioner, which he held at the time of his death.

President Chadbourne was an effective speaker and was always listened to with pleasure. He was a successful author and the writer of a number of books on natural theology, instinct, relations of natural history, etc., and many pamphlets, essays and addresses. He received the degree of M. D. from the Berkshire Medical College in 1859, that of LL. D. from Williams College 1868, and that of D. D. from Amherst College in 1872. He was a member of a number of societies, including the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries of Copenhagen and the Massachusetts Historical Society.

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

IMPORTANT DECISION BY THE COURT AS TO THE ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE.

A Washington despatch says: The Alabama Claims Court, Friday, made an important decision as to evidence. The gist is that affidavits in sailors' claims must be corroborated. The Court, however, did not throw the case out, but gave the sailor who was from New England another chance. Probably a majority of the sailors' cases are supported only by their own affidavits. There are a great many Sandwich Island sailors with queer names and curious claims, some of which are suspicious. One sailor makes a claim for $375 in Masonic emblems, and another for $200 in gold watches. Metcalf, the merchant, argued his own case in the Court Friday, and made a very successful opposition to the Government lawyer. One of the points was as to the gold premium. When Metcalf put the stores on his ship gold was 201; he makes his claim at 201. Creswell, for the Government, contended that the bill was passed with gold at par, and only par could be allowed. This is one of the important points involved in this case, and the decision of it will be of great importance to all claimants.

There is no probability that the bill will be passed which extends the time for filing claims. The owners of steamboats on Western rivers are making most extraordinary claims under the award. The owner of a barge on the Red River makes a claim of $460 for cotton burned by Confederates, on the ground that the river is on the high seas; a St. Louis steamboat owner claims $150,000 for the loss of a steamer near Memphis and $150,000 for the demurrage.

Amount Saved.

It is not the amount that a person earns or receives that goes to make the total of his property after many years; it is the amount saved

From observations of men for the past sixteen years in this respect, I am convinced that many do not save, unless in a sense compelled to. On this ground I have the best of reasons for urging the way of life and endowment policies, issued by the Connecticut Mutual Life Ins. Co., even if it were not the fact that death is a foe ever ready to devour us upon every hand

Cash paid for life policies after 10 years. These values exceed those required by any State law, and are printed in the policy, thus making the most perfect contract ever offered in Life Insurance.

THE CHRISTIANCY DIAMONDS.

Confession of a "Fence."

WASHINGTON Feb 25 Thomas Donnelly, one person recently indicted as a fence, to-day made a sworn confession in regard to the Christiancy diamond robbery, which implicates ex-Detectives Miller and McElfresh, Charles Coy and Bennett, the New York fence who has already been arrested This statement is so conclusive that it seems to wholly relieve ex-Minister Christiancy of any unfavorable impression in relation to the loss of the diamonds and other valuables entrusted to his care by the residents of Peru during the late war with Chili.

XLVII CONGRESS—Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. After transacting some unimportant business of a routine character the Senate at 12 o'clock went into Executive session When the doors were reopened the Senate took up the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bills. Upon the provision increasing the salary of the public printer to $4,000, discussion arose as to the influence of the printer's union upon the management of the government printing office.

After debate the amendment was agreed to. The amendment of the committee on appropriations to the internal revenue portion of the bill providing for the travelling expenses of officers and clerks, a detailed special service, and for averaging the fees of gaugers was ruled out as a point of order as new legislation. The committee had reported in favor of striking out the provision repealing the law of last year, authorizing the appointment of an Assistant Secretary of War and an Assistant Secretary of the Navy, but on motion of Mr. Gorman the repealing paragraph was retained.

The paragraph appropriating $50,000 for the employment of clerk to dispose of the accumulated work in the general land office was amended so as to employ them under the provisions of the civil service act. A provision for the purchase of the Roachambeau papers and records, and briefs belonging to the estate of the late Senator Carpenter, was agreed to. The bill was reported to the Senate and the amendments made in the Committee of the Whole were agreed to, except that the provision for the repeal of the law authorizing the appointment of Assistant Secretaries of the War and Navy Departments respectively was struck out. The bill then passed

Mr. Edmunds gave notice as soon as the fourth of July claims bill should have been disposed of he would ask the Senate to proceed with the Utah bill. At 6 o'clock the Senate went into Executive session and a few minutes later adjourned.

House.

Immediately after the reading of the journal, the Speaker proceeded to call the committee under the Pound rule.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, under instructions from the Committee on Ways and Means, called up the bill to prevent the importation of adulterated or spurious tea On motion of Mr. Randall an amendment was adopted to the section which provides for the further examination of tea represented by invoice as follows. Provided such further examination of such tea shall be made within three days after entry thereof has been made at the Custom House, and provided further the bond above required shall also be conditional for the payment of all Custom House charges which may attach to such merchandise prior to its being released or destroyed, as the case may be under the provisions of this act.

On motion of Mr. Randall an additional section was agreed to granting the Secretary of the Treasury power to enforce the provisions of this act by appropriate regulations The bill as amended was passed

The House proceeded to consider the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, the pending question being on an amendment reported from the Committee of the Whole, granting $5000 to the legal representatives of Andrew Herron, of La , late member of the 48th Congress. The amendment was lost. The bill then passed

Mr. Holland of Georgia, then called up the report of the Judiciary Committee on the matter of Thomas J. Majors's claim to a seat as a contingent member from Nebraska Mr. Hammond said that the committee had been imposed upon by false testimony On investigation the conclusion of the committee was that Thomas J. Majors is responsible for the misinformation which induced the committee to make the report of the first of April, 1882, and that he was aided therein by S. J. Alexander, Secretary of the State of Nebraska, by Pat O. Hawes, Dr. P. Schwenk and Geo H Roberts, and we report that the testimony of Davis is false and we ask the adoption of the following resolution

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be and he is hereby required to furnish a printed copy of this report, including evidence, to the District Attorney of the District of Columbia, the Attorney General of the United States and the Governor of the State of Nebraska, that they may take such action as they may deem suitable to the gravity of the wrongs committed. The resolution was adopted

The House then proceeded to consider the bill appropriating $10 000 000 annually for five years to aid in the support of common schools. Mr. Sherwin submitted an exhaustive argument in support of the measure Messrs. Willis, of Kentucky, Clements, of Georgia, and Wheeler, of Alabama, also favored the bill. Pending further discussion Mr Reed, of Maine, from the Committee on Rules, reported the following resolution That during the remainder of this session it shall be in order at any time to move to suspend the rules, which motion is to be decided by a majority vote, to take from the Speaker's table House bill 5,538 with the Senate amendments thereto, entitled a bill to reduce internal taxation and to declare a disagreement with the Senate amendment to the same, and ask for a Committee of Conference thereon, to be composed of five members on part of the House. If such motion shall fail, the bill shall remain on the Speaker's table unaffected by the decision of the House on said motion; laid over for action until Monday.

Mr Flower, of New York, introduced a bill repealing all internal taxes except on distilled spirits; referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Sherwin then demanded the previous question on his Education bill pending which, on motion of Mr. Robeson, of New Jersey, the House at 4:55 adjourned. The vote stood yeas, 81, nays, 80. Mr. Willis impeached the integrity of the record by stating that Mr Haskell was recorded as voting in the affirmative and he was informed that the gentleman had not been present during the roll call. The Clerk stated that there was an affirmative response when Mr Haskell's name was called; no action taken.

A MYSTERY.

Several Inmates of an Insane Asylum Poisoned.

STANTON, Va , Feb. 24. Five inmates of the Western Lunatic Asylum were fatally poisoned to-day. The names of the dead are Leonard L. Wilkins, of Northampton county, Thos. W. Adams of London, J. M. Hallman of Spottsylvania, Jud W. Hines of Bath, and Isaac S. Perry of Frederick. They dropped dead in ten minutes after taking some medicine Mathew Vaughan, of Prince Edward, is also likely to die. Three others are sick, but will recover. At the inquest it was shown, that the usual medicine had been mixed for certain patients and taken to the patients' room where it remained two hours before being taken by the patients

The poisoned persons were all in different wards in the male department, which indicates that the fatal drug must have been pretty freely used. No satisfactory conclusion has yet been reached as to how the poison got into the glasses containing the medicine, and the officers of the asylum are mystified. A post mortem will be held on the bodies and the investigation continued until something can be obtained. Intense excitement prevails here over the affair.

Nothing was saved from the house excepting a few chairs. Several children were rescued in their night clothes. The barn was saved though the fire caught on it several times. Walker, of Hampden, State Lecturer Freeman and many other honored pioneers of the order were present and made interesting addresses. REFORM CLUB. The inclement weather of yesterday did not prevent a good-sized audience from attending the Reform Club temperance meeting, and the exercises were of a profitable and interesting character to the cause. In the opening, Miss Annie D. Page read the 84th Psalm and Chaplain Henry led in prayer. President Ayer conducted the exercises, and his opening remarks were replete with encouragement, Mr. Wm. R. Glass followed in good words and sound advice to the young to grow up without using alcohol; Messrs. David Ames, A. F. Bragg and Chas. E. Williams all gave supporting evidence for total abstinence; Col. Eustis, of Boston, made more extended remarks, which ought to convince any doubtful mind while the addresses of Revs. Peck, of N. Y., and Eldridge, of this city, were solid arguments in favor of temperance reform and merited denunciations of liquor selling. The audience were impressed with emotion at Mr. Eldridge's announcement that in all probability this occasion was the last they could hope to see him in a public meeting, as he leaves immediately for Cheyenne, Wyoming. The gentleman's parting words touched and impressed the entire audience. Vice President Hanover presented the pledge for signatures and an encouraging list was obtained.

A GOLDEN WEDDING. A Levant correspondent writes Last Tuesday evening a large and pleasant company assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs S. D. Staples in Levant village, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. The aged couple (the bride 75 and the groom 73 years of age) came forward with the sprightliness and agility of former years, to renew their vows and have the nuptial knot tied a second time, which was performed by Rev. C. L. Bangbart. Mr and Mrs S. are the parents of seven children, eighteen grand-children and six great-grand-children. After a half century of wedded life, this aged couple are still young in heart and vigorous in health. It seemed most evident to the company present that the bride had anticipated the event for some years, when she displayed as the work of her own hands very handsome quilts to the amount of eighteen, all of which have been made within three years One of the quilts containing 2,448 pieces was presented to the pastor and which was highly appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. S. were very generously remembered by their friends, and were the recipients of many pretty and useful presents for which they desired through your columns to express their thanks. The evening was passed very pleasantly in social intercourse and singing. All expressed themselves as highly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

THE PRINCES OF THE ORIENT

Their First Annual Conclave at the Bangor Exchange.

Mr. Editor.—The first annual conclave of the Princes of the Orient, which was held at the Bangor Exchange Hotel on Friday evening last, was a social event never to be forgotten by those who were present, and one demanding more than a mere passing notice. Three months ago Bro. C F. Bragg, our present Supreme Grand Orient, was the only member of this order in Bangor, if not in Maine. To-day he is at the head of a lodge numbering about seventy members, who met as above under the hospitable roof of mine host Thayer, to celebrate the formation of their lodge.

Roll was called in the hotel parlor at 9 P. M., and the doors of the dining hall were thrown open and all were invited to enter. The fact that the dinner was under the management of landlord Thayer was a sufficient guarantee that it would be a success, but no one was prepared for the agreeable surprise which awaited us. The room was profusely decorated with the emblems of the order, mottos, colors, etc., especially suggestive to its members, while the tables presented a sight that would rival Delmonico in decorative art and magnificence, surpassing all former attempts. Bro. Thayer had fairly out-done himself.

After devoting about two hours to the discussion of the viands so bountifully spread before us, dinner was finished and Toastmaster A. F. Snow, assumed command, initiating proceedings by presenting to the Supreme Grand Orient, in behalf of the order, a jewel symbolic of the daily life of the human race and also showing the stern realities, so well remembered by all Princes of the Orient. Following the presentation came the toasts of the evening, which were responded to by various members. Some of the speeches were highly characteristic and amusing.

Finally when warned that the "wee sma' hours" were fast approaching the merry company dispersed with three rousing cheers for A. W. Thayer and a unanimous vote that all future conclaves should be held at the Bangor Exchange, and as the Princes wended their way homeward in small groups each could be heard saying to a Brother Prince, "I know, you know, we know 'Our 'M'embers 'H'ere 'A'ssembled can hardly be induced to say, it shall never be so again."

Police Court.

Peter Connell, for assault on John Varley, son of Martin Varley, was Saturday arraigned and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Appealed.

THE COMING RECEPTION.

Preparations for the Interesting Event.

The time is rapidly approaching for the grand reception to be given Gov. Robie and Staff and Gen. Chamberlain and Staff, by the field and staff officers and honorary members of the Second Maine Regiment, M. V. M., and it promises to be the important social event of the season in Bangor. Norombega Hall is a scene of great activity, the old floor has been taken up, the new floor is being laid and the improvements will all be completed during the present week. Mr. C. E. Lovell, who is to have charge of the decorations has gone to Boston to arrange with Col. Beals of the Boston Decorating Company for the decorations, which will be unique and tasty and adapted to the occasion.

In order to control the number of people admitted to the ball, the committee of arrangements have decided that invitations will be extended only to Gov. Robie and Staff, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House, Executive Council, Military Committee of the Legislature, Gen Chamberlain and Staff, officers of the militia, regular army and navy and ex-Governors of Maine. Each honorary member will receive an invitation and ticket of admission. In order for a citizen to be admitted to the ball his name must be presented to the committee of arrangements in season for them to act upon, and only a limited addition will be received, the ranks of honorary membership being about full. There have been so many applications for admission that the committee of arrangements found it necessary to adopt this rule in order to control the number of admissions to the hall.

There has been some delay in receiving the invitations, the tardiness being caused by the change of the ball from the Bangor House to Norombega and the consequent alterations which the New York engravers found necessary to make in the design. A telegram received by D. Bugbee & Co., on Saturday, stated that the invitations would surely be forwarded from New York to-day. Prominent citizens have taken hold of the reception with zeal and a grand affair is now assured. The music for the occasion will be by Andrews' Orchestra of twelve pieces Mr. Fred Johnson will furnish the collation

AMUSEMENTS

Corinne Merrie Makers.

Corinne and her famous Merrie Makers have been playing a successful engagement at the Bangor Opera House On Saturday afternoon "The Magic Slipper" was presented before a fine matinee audience, the attendance of children being especially large A smooth rendition was given and the participants were warmly received. Saturday evening, the new musical comedy of "Bijou, or Our Company," was played before an audience thoroughly appreciative. The company is a well balanced and strong one, containing much excellent talent Little Corinne is, as would be expected, the central figure, and her petite ways, artistic acting and marvelous singing delight every one and excites the greatest admiration for her. If Mr. Hayden, who assumes the role of Fred Blaine, would devote himself exclusively to what is transpiring on the stage instead of noting the effect of his performance on the audience it would add wonderfully to the merit of his part, Mr Fisk, Mr Mills and Mr Woodbury were excellent, while the lady parts were well sustained by Misses Hesse, Parker and Kimball. Sunday evening, notwithstanding the fierce storm, a fair audience assembled at the Opera House and heard a very meritorious concert

The White Slave

This morning at eight o'clock, at the Opera House box office, the sale of seats will open for the representation of "The White Slave" This great drama, with its fine scenic effects, will be given at the Opera House next Wednesday and Thursday evening by the original Boston Theatre cast, which includes, without any exception, all of the leading people of the home theatre. Of the acting, the Lowell Mail of Feb. 20th, said:

Of the acting last night nothing can be said but praise. Mr. Redmund performed the role of Clay Britton, the reckless noble hearted profligate, in a manner which left nothing to be desired. Mr. Maguinness, as Patrick Henry Stitch, the love-making lawyer, made a hit as he usually does. Mr. Frazer Coulter, as William Lacy, the heartless slave dealer and gambler, was so natural as to make himself thoroughly hateful. Mr. Charles Kent acted the part of the decrepit and dying Judge Hardie excellently and made it one of the strongest characters in the cast, E. A. Eberle was an ideal darkey of the old school, Miss Rachel Noah displayed her wonderful versatility by the assumption of the character of Aunt Martha, "the better half," and S. E. Springer as Clem, "the other half," successfully cooperated with her in making an endless amount of fun. Of the female characters Miss Louise Muldener as Lisa, the heroine, played the part with innocence and grace Mrs. Thomas Barry sustained her excellent reputation as Nance, the quadroon, her action in the scene on Red Devil Island being forcible and artistic, Miss Grace Thorne was artless in manner and taste in dress in presenting the girlish character of Lettie Lee, Mrs. E. A. Eberle as the widow Lee, looked and acted the part to perfection, and Miss Edith Kingdom, acted Daphne a French Octoroon with so much spirit and intensity that it was a matter of regret that he had not more to do. The appreciation of the audience was emphatically expressed, the leading characters being called before the curtain at two different times.

Esther.

As will be seen by reference to the advertisement columns this beautiful production, for so many weeks in rehearsal, will be presented to the public in the Opera House on Monday evening, March 1st. The story is an exceedingly interesting and striking one, and the brilliant genius of the composer, Wm. B Bradbury, has worked it up into the highest musical and dramatic excellence. It abounds in splendid choruses, and the solo parts seem perfectly fitted to set off the peculiar characteristics of the personages taking them. The final tragic act culminating in the death of Haman and the triumph of the Jews under Mordecai is very noble and effective, while the splendid tableau presented by the throng of children at the Queen's banquet is beautiful in the extreme. As will be seen by the advertisement, the cast is a very strong one, and this together with the very worthy object for which the piece is performed should bring out a grand house.

Buffalo Bill.

The well known Buffalo Bill Combination will appear at the Opera House next Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee in "Twenty Days, or Buffalo Bill's Pledge." Large houses will doubtless greet this favorite actor.

The name is comparatively new, but the disease is as old as sin itself. The throat is violently inflamed, and a tough membrane, like leather, is very rapidly formed. Perry Davis's Pain Killer has cured thousands of cases of diphtheria. Concerning Certain Relics of the Past—Dogs that have had their Day.

George Stephenson's "Rocket," and the magnificent locomotives of to-day, are built upon the same general principle, yet the machine with which the great engineer astonished his age is interesting now only as an illustration of the beginning of the invention There were plasters with holes in them long before BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER surprised both the public and the physicians, and the triumph of the Capcine is founded upon the partial successes, or the utter failures of its predecessors Everything of value in the old porous plaster retained in the Capcine, but at this point all comparison ends, and contrast begins For example

The old plasters were slow in their action; the Capcine is quick and sure.

The old plasters lacked the power to do more than to impart slight, temporary relief in cases easy of treatment, the Capcine penetrates the system and permanently cures the troubles for which it is recommended.

The old plasters depended for any good results they might attain, upon an accident of their make and the naked faith of their wearers; the Benson's reaches its ends by means of the scientific combination of the rare medicinal ingredients which it contains!

In brief, the old plasters, like Stephenson's discarded engine, are switched off the track, while the Benson's goes on its way winning golden opinions from all sorts of people

Yet in this very fact lies the leading danger to the people who buy and use this reliable and [illegible] remedy "Hypocrisy is the tribute vice pays to virtue" Imitation is the concession that failure makes to success Benson's Plasters are parodied in name and style

THE WILLIMANTIC MILLS.

An Inspection by Yale Students.

SEEING FOR THEMSELVES WHAT PROTECTION DOES FOR EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYES.

[From a Special Correspondent of the Tribune.]

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 21.—The Senior class of Yale College and nearly all the students in the Law and Scientific Schools visited Willimantic, to-day, in search of the "forgotten man," concerning whom Professor Sumner spoke with such eloquent commiseration a short time ago in Brooklyn. They knew the species to which the desired specimen belonged, and the Professor had kindly pointed out the locality in which it was expected that they would find it. They came straight to the mills of the Willimantic Linen Company. They searched among 96,000 humming spindles; walked over acres of floors, thrilling with the life of busy industry; peeped into the library, schoolrooms and stores of the "tariff-built fraud;" down across the tumbling cataracts of the Willimantic River up to "The Oaks," where two scores of pretty cottages, with gabled roofs, told of the habitations of a small fraction of the families employed by the company, and further on, up the hills that skirt the old borough on the west, saw the snow glittering in the grove set apart for the summer merrymaking of the Willimantic Company's work-people. But they found no forgotten man, woman or child. They found instead, a wonderfully cheerful, contented, healthy-looking, industrial community.

Then, too, the college men found that they themselves were among those remembered by the Willimantic Linen Company and its president. A hot lunch gladdened their stomachs on their arrival, and started them off on their tour of inspection in a capital condition of receptivity. Unfortunately, Professor Sumner could not accompany them, but he had already discouraged the search for the interesting variety of the vertebrata in the locality that he first pointed out, by saying that he knew there were no forgotten men or women in Willimantic, and he promised to visit the thread mills when next he should be in the borough. Since he talked before the Revenue Reform Club in Brooklyn, Professor Sumner has had occasion to be amazed at the great matter which his little fire kindled. Half a hundred words have set half a hundred thousand tongues buzzing in New England, and scores of pens writing throughout the country. He has tried for ten days to extinguish the little blaze with silence, but President Barrows, finding him unwilling to make a public correction of his utterances, fell back upon his own keen instinct for advertising, and adroitly fanned the blaze until it grew large enough to throw a vivid illumination upon the great industry in his care.

THE STUDENTS ON THE GROUND.

The invitation was originally intended by Colonel Barrows to the seniors of the Academic Department and the faculty, but afterwards was made to include the Scientific and Law Schools. A special train of cars was put at their disposal, and at half-past 12 o'clock, they arrived here full of life and animation, but, nevertheless, an orderly, gentlemanly party of young men. Out of the Senior Class, numbering 149, 130 were present; out of the Scientific School, of 49, 33, and the law students numbered about 75. The "Academics" had been excused from lectures by President Porter and Professor Ladd, and the "Scientifics," from professor Brewer's noon lecture. They were taken at once to the packing-room of one of the mills, where they took a luncheon of oysters, salads, sandwiches, fruits, cakes, ice-cream and coffee.

While they were eating, half a dozen young women in the employ of the company, in white aprons, looped up with Yale blue, distributed souvenirs among them. The favors were neat boxes, each containing a spool of Willimantic thread, and bearing a label: "With the compliments of 'the tariff-built fraud.'" They were tied by deft fingers to the coat buttons of the young men with blue ribbons. Thus decorated, the whole party was divided in squads of about twenty, and under the guidance of officers and employes of the company, the tour of the mills was begun. The "Dynamics" plunged at once into the machinery, took indicator cards of the action of the Corliss engines, and, under the direction of Colonel Barrows, himself a master mechanic, examined the details of the picking, carding, spinning and roving machines with evident interest and profit.

The "Academics" seemed to pursue a different course; that free trade was a mere theory, and protection a tangible, substantial and generous fact, they knew the moment they found the lunch-room. The remainder of their inquiries seemed mostly into the lustrousness of the eyes of some of the young women operatives and the prettiness of their teeth. One would have thought that the only interesting machines in the mills were those whose fair tenders had clustering "bangs," bright eyes, clear complexions and pretty smiles; and they were not a few. It was a very entertaining way of studying political economy—so all admitted. Fully four hours were spent in the mills, and only one incident occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion. Half a dozen of the Seniors and one Junior, who had got into the party, were curious to see the turbine wheel which supplied power to a portion of one of the mills; their guide took them down to the wheel-room. While huddled together upon a narrow plank and peering into the dark waters of the tail-race, the plank broke, and Hilleberg, Sherman, Beede, Vernon and F. Calhoun, of the Seniors, and Hidden, of the Juniors, were given a sudden and unexpected bath. One or two were drenched to the skin, the others were merely splashed with water and mud, and none were seriously damaged except as to their clothes.

After all the departments of the mills had been examined, and visits had been made across the river, to the cottages inhabited by some of the work people, in a new and trim little village called "The Oaks," built by the company, the students gathered again in the room for which they started out. There Colonel Barrows was put upon a table and plied with questions touching the controversy which has grown out of Professor Sumner's allusion to the Willimantic Linen Company's capital, dividends and pay-list, and the effect of a protective tariff upon the industry and upon the work-people. A great many of the students, including the only Japanese left at Yale, crowded around, and the colloquy was carried on, energetically and made to cover the comparative earnings of thread spinners here and in Great Britain, the condition of the operatives in both countries and the relative cost of cotton thread to the seamstress. At 6:30 o'clock the young men started back to New Haven, having enjoyed a profitable and delightful holiday. They were enthusiastic in pronouncing the excursion a triumphant success.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT.

Aside from the comparative advantages of protection or free trade, this visit of the students showed them the workings of an interesting experiment in the treatment of mill operatives by their employers. The Willimantic through a policy for which Colonel Barrows claims nothing more than that it is the wisest, most economical and most profitable to the company, the physical, mental and moral health of 1,600 operatives is being watched over day and night. It is an effort on a large scale to solve the problem of the relation between employer and laborer. Colonel Barrows has gone at it in a practical, business-like manner, bringing to the task the knowledge of the mechanic and the sympathy which the acquirement of that knowledge at the mechanic's lathe brought him.

A college professor's son, and a man of refinement and culture, he served his apprenticeship in the Lowell Machine Shop, worked at his trade and learned the thoughts and feelings of laboring men by association with them in a corporation boarding-house. The result of this comprehensive training is seen in the theories of mill government which he has formed, and the manner in which he works them out. He believes that the saner the bodies, minds and morals of his work-people, the better will be their work. His policy is the policy of the Willimantic Company, but it has been enlarged so that it can be said that it extends a beneficial influence in the borough through every channel usually occupied by philanthropy and charity. The best illustration of the methods used to this end was found to-day in the more recent improvements made by the company to its property.

A new mill built in 1879, with room on a single floor for 60,000 spindles, and now working 32,000, was found in full activity. Most of the operatives were women, all of whom were tidily dressed, and contented and healthy in appearance. A fringe of growing plants surrounded the room, over 800 feet long and 147 feet wide. Into the cloak rooms the light fell through stained glass and sent bands of color across beds of tropical and rare plants all labelled with their names. Here in the forenoon, for half an hour, sixty children, under fourteen years of age, employed in the mill, romped and ate a lunch of milk and crackers. The floor, covered with the vast multitude of machines thrilled under their pulsations, but did not shake, for a wise foresight had put the large pulleys and shafts which conveyed the power from the engines, into a cement floor in the basement. "It is better thus for the women," said Colonel Barrows. "It keeps them well, and they make better thread."

Across the hill stand forty cottages built by the company. They are of four styles, front a winding road, and for the sake of beauty, and to cultivate a love and appreciation for it, fences are abolished, grass plots surround them, they are painted in neutral colors; no two that are alike either in architecture or color, are put side by side, and each has its flower garden in front. In summer, the growing of flowers is encouraged by the awarding of premiums for the best three gardens, by the company. "If they like flowers they will make better thread," says Colonel Barrows. Near one of the old mills stands Dunham Hall, a handsome wooden gothic building, containing a model store and millinery shop, the president's office, a schoolroom and a library.

In the school-room, classes are taught free, four nights each week, the teacher being on the pay roll of the company. "We must have intelligence," says the president, "after July 1, all our work-people must be able to read and write. Then the thread they make will be evener and stronger and better." Once a week there is a singing school, and once a week also a drawing school, and the company, which pays one third the taxes of the town of Windham and nearly one-half the taxes of the borough of Willimantic, supports a circulating library that has 400 volumes, out among the laborers all the time, while the borough library is open two days a week. "We work our people sixty hours a week," says the president, "but not ten hours each day. They work longer five days, and quit at a quarter past one on Saturday, so that they can have a dance in the summer over in the grove under the oaks and hickories and spruce trees. We give them the music and it brightens their natures. They feel a pride in their belongings, an interest in us, and make better thread."

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails.

Go to the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier's department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and state, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

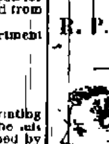

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

HEART DISEASE!

IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick, and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the cause is the heart.

The renowned Dr. Clendinnen says "one third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."

The heart weighs nine ounces, and yet a man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a half, resting not day or night. Surely this subject should have careful consideration.

Dr. Graves, a celebrated physician, has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred organs, known as Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator, and can be obtained at your druggists, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. (1)
